Washington Kastles' New Stadium is First American Tennis Venue to Offer Boat Parking

Kastles Stadium at The Wharf to Offer Free Slips to Season Ticketholders

WASHINGTON – June 13, 2011 – The Washington Kastles announced today that they will be the first tennis stadium in the United States, and the first stadium of any kind in Washington, to provide complimentary boat parking, another added benefit for season ticket holders this summer.

The limited boat parking will be available along the Southwest Waterfront at Gangplank Marina. Fans will be able to dock their boats steps away from the new Kastles Stadium at The Wharf during home matches in July.

“The new Kastles Stadium at The Wharf will offer our fans a spectacular experience this summer, including one of the most innovative ways to get to a tennis match, by boat,” said team owner Mark Ein. “While most fans will use one of the many other convenient ways to get to our matches, we are excited to offer complimentary boat parking for our season ticketholders that can take advantage of this unique way to spend a great summer evening in the heart of our Nation’s Capital.”

Season ticket holders can make their reservations with Gangplank Marina for the limited parking by visiting <http://www.gangplank.com>. Reservations are first come, first served. Boat parking during matches is free, but does not include the cost of electricity or overnight parking.

Kastles Stadium at The Wharf will also be easily accessible by Metro via both the Waterfront-SEU and L'Enfant Plaza stations that are two and three blocks away. Kastles fans will also be able to park in the underground parking lot or other surface lots that will be available this summer if they drive.
