NEW YORK (March 11, 2010) – The world's top tennis professionals will compete in World TeamTennis action once again this July at the new, $18 million state-of-the-art SPORTIME at Randall's Island Tennis Center, where the New York Sportimes will play their second season at their new home in New York City. New York will open their home schedule against the WTT Champion Washington Kastles on July 5, at 7 p.m.

The SPORTIMES will once again be captained by New York tennis legend John McEnroe, playing in his 10th WTT season. On Monday, July 19, McEnroe will take the court in a star-studded night of Grand Slam champions, teaming with defending US Open Champion Kim Clijsters in her only New York pre-US Open appearance, to face off against former No. 1 Martina Hingis and her New York Buzz team. McEnroe will also play at home for the Sportimes when they host the 2009 Western Conference Champions Springfield Lasers on July 12.

In a newly announced visit, No. 1 American player Andy Roddick, the 2003 US Open Men's Singles Champion, will make his first ever WTT playing appearance in New York on Wednesday, July 14, leading the Philadelphia Freedoms against the Sportimes. Roddick is presently ranked No. 8 in the world and has 28 career singles titles. He is a former world No. 1 and has played for the United States Davis Cup Team.

Other highlights of the Sportimes' home schedule include visits by New York native James Blake playing for his Boston Lobsters on Wednesday, July 7, and a return match with the Kastles and their star Serena Williams on July 15.

Season tickets are currently available and individual match tickets will go on sale on Friday, March 18. Tickets are available by calling 888-WTT-NYC1 or by visiting www.nysportimes.com.

New York will complete their lineup on March 16 when the WTT Roster Draft is held at 11 a.m. EST. Follow the Draft live on www.WTT.com.
